ROYAL LONDON UK OPPORTUNITIES FUND

29.02.24

Overview

The Fund's investment objective is to achieve capital growth over the medium term (3-5 years) by investing at least 80% in the shares of UK companies listed on the London Stock Exchange. The Fund's performance target is to outperform, after the deduction of charges, the FTSE All-Share Total Return GBP Index (the "Index") over rolling 5-year periods. The FTSE All-Share Index is regarded as a good measure of the share-price performance of the approximately 600 largest UK companies on the London Stock Exchange. The Index is considered an appropriate benchmark for the Fund's performance, as the Fund's potential investments will predominantly be included in the Index. In addition to the benchmark for the Fund's performance as noted above (the "Index"), the IA UK All Companies sector (6) is considered an appropriate benchmark for performance comparison.

Fund Commentary

The RLAM UK Opportunities fund produced a return of -0.3% during the month, performing in line with the benchmark (FTSE All Share).

February was a relatively uneventful month for macroeconomic news; expectations for interest rate cuts were pushed back a few months by central bankers, although this didn't prevent the Nasdaq in the US hitting all time highs thanks to continued enthusiasm for all things AI related. The FTSE All Share ended broadly flat, while Small and Mid Caps underperformed, reflecting caution about the UK economy. Data released during the month suggested that the UK economy did slip into a mild technical recession at the end 2023, but better PMI data gave cause for optimism that the economy was starting 2024 more positively.

Beazley and Auction Technology Group ("ATG") were positive significant contributors. Beazley delivered an extremely robust trading update in advance of their full year results, detailing a combined ratio in the "mid 70s" percent (this demonstrates a very profitable underwriting result) and committing to returning at least $300m of capital to shareholders in addition to their dividend. This is particularly impressive given their recent entry into the Property Catastrophe market, as new business lines often carry higher costs and aren't able to benefit from prior year reserve releases. ATG's update, which released at the end of January, surprised naysayers by holding guidance for the coming year despite operating in markets which have some short term challenges. This is a demonstration of their strategy to grow revenues through greater provision of value added services such as payment processing and logistics. Genus and St James' Place were detractors during the month. Genus had to reduce earnings guidance due to ongoing weak demand in both their Bovine and Porcine markets in a few territories, but most acutely in China. The executive team are taking action to fundamentally improve the economics of their business model in Bovine, as well as removing some central costs to drive profitability. Within Porcine, despite the weak trading results from China, they're nevertheless making progress winning large Chinese customers and transitioning more customers to predictable royalty contracts; this will be a better business when demand returns, more in the form of their world class European and US operations. St James' Place surprised investors by taking a provision against future legal claims by clients, which is undeniably disappointing. The new CEO has attempted to draw a line under the issue alongside a new, simpler, fee structure which should provide improved transparency in future.
