Fund description

- The UBS FTSE RAFI Developed 1000 Index Fund (the Fund) seeks to track the return of the FTSE RAFI Developed 1000 Total Return Net GBP – QSR Index (the Index) before the deduction of charges. The Fund employs a passive investment strategy, investing all, or substantially all, of its assets in the shares of companies that make up the Index. To the extent that the Fund is not fully invested in the constituents of the Index, it may be invested in shares of companies which in the Manager's opinion are reasonably expected to become part of the Index. The Index is comprised of 1000 large, medium and small companies in developed markets, selected and weighted using a composite of fundamental factors, including total cash dividends, free cash flow, total sales and book equity value. FTSE Russell® is a trade mark owned by the London Stock Exchange Group companies and is used by FTSE Russell International Limited under licence.

Glossary of key terms

Benchmark

Index against which an investment fund's performance is measured. Also called a reference index.

Beta

A measure of risk which indicates the sensitivity of an investment, such as an investment fund, to fluctuations in the market, as represented by the relevant benchmark. For example, a beta of 1.2 tells us that the value of an investment fund can be expected to change by 12% if the market is forecast to move by 10%. The relation is based on historical data and is only an approximation. However, the closer the correlation between the benchmark and the investment fund, the better this approximation.

Correlation

A measure of the degree to which the price trends of various investment categories or instruments move in the same direction. The correlation quantifies the strength of the relationship as a figure between -1 and $+1$. The closer the coefficient is to 1, the stronger the correlation. If the coefficient is -1 , the investments and the benchmark move in opposite directions. If the value is 0, there is no correlation.

Duration

The duration represents the length of time for which capital is "tied up" in a bond investment. In contrast to residual maturity calculations, the concept of duration takes account of the time structure of returning cash flows (such as coupon repayments). The average duration of the portfolio is derived from the weighted average duration of the individual securities. The "modified duration" is derived from the duration and provides a measure of the risk with which the sensitivity of bonds or bond portfolios to interest-rate changes can be estimated. A 1% increase (decrease) in the interest level accordingly produces a percentage fall (rise) in the price in proportion to the modified duration. For example: the modified duration of a bond fund is 4.5, the theoretical yield to maturity is 5.3%. If the theoretical yield to maturity drops in the example by 1% to 4.3% due to the decline in interest rates, the fund price increases by around 4.5%. For bond and asset allocation funds, the duration is given for all fixed-income instruments.

Investment grade

Term used to denote securities with ratings of between BBB and AAA, indicating that their credit quality is satisfactory or good.

Sharpe ratio

The Sharpe ratio expresses how much higher (or lower) a return an investor can expect compared to the risk-free rate of interest (e.g. interest rates on savings accounts) per unit of risk (volatility). The risk-free rate of interest varies from currency to currency.

Tracking error

Measure of the deviation of the return of a fund compared to the return of a benchmark over a fixed period of time. Expressed as a percentage. The more passively the investment fund is managed, the smaller the tracking error.
